A Trial Offer For Those Leaving The Active Forces.

D12.11:

Leaving the military is one of the biggest decisions you'll ever make.

But it can also open doors for you. Because now you can take advantage of this one-of-a-kind, once-in-a-life-time offer from the Air National Guard.

It's called the Try One Program. Here's how it works.

You agree to serve part-time for one year in the Air National Guard. Give us the benefit of your experience, your know-how and your leadership.

In return, we'll give back a lot of the benefits you'd normally lose by leaving the active forces.

Benefits like base exchange and commissary privileges, retirement pay, and a chance to work with friends, doing a lot of things you enjoyed doing in the active forces.

Try One Year In The Air National Guard.

We'll also give you a great part-time salary, and something you won't find anywhere else in the active forces.

Time.

Because in the Air Guard, you serve two days a month and 15 days a year, right in your hometown. So you can pursue a civilian career, or you can go to college, full-time. You may even qualify for a monthly bonus of $25 for each month of your remaining Military Service Obligation, in addition to your regular non-commissioned officer's pay. And after the year is up, you can re-enlist for even more bonuses and benefits.

It all comes down to this. With the Try One Program, you can enjoy a civilian life-style, and keep a lot of your military benefits. To our way of thinking, that's the best of both worlds.

Take Advantage Of The Try One Program.
